

Jon has worked in the ERP and consulting all of his 14 years of IT service. He has personally seen the cultivation of ERP at many of the notable enterprises in the process manufacturing across this great land. His intimate involvement with many groups in these organizations had given him the insights to manufacturing and accounting practices of these organizations. He has lead multifunctional teams in development of Supply chain, EDI, warehouse management integration to CIMPRO's ERP. He was also instrumental in integrating GIS (Geographic Information Systems) to the Agilisys (formerly Adage) ERP package. His idea was the first such integration attempt next to that of SAP. He also headed the team to implement document management within the ERP environment. His technical and functional knowledge has made him astute to the needs of enterprises in the IT field in this millennium. Jon also teaches Telecommunication and Computer Information systems in his spare time.
